

Young's Pond & Bob's Woods

Alden M. Young of Waterbury, a backer of the shoreline trolley system, was also the primary developer of the Pine Orchard neighborhood as a summer colony in the early 20th century. In 1971, the company that he founded gave much of his estate to the Town to create Young's Pond Park. The park contains a small pond (popular for ice skating), woods, and a baseball field. Old carriage roads and vigorous stands of planted rhododendrons are among the remnants of the estate that give this property a distinctive feeling of a bygone era. In contrast to these reminders of human activity, deed restrictions explicitly forbid additional manmade structures, even benches.

In 2004, a for sale sign appeared at the southern end of the pond; land that many had thought to be part of the park was actually privately owned. Park lovers were distressed, but the day was saved by the Pritzker-Schwartz-Vlock family foundation, which bought the property and donated it to the Branford Land Trust. The parcel was named Bob's Woods in honor of Robert A. Pritzker, the father of one of the foundation members.
